A Movement from the Ghettos to the Farms, Unreached Peoples, Refugees and Nations

Dear Friends of All Nations,

I visited Kampala, Uganda recently, where I witnessed a mighty move of God. Four years ago, a man named Wilson attended a Church Planting eXperience (CPx) training at the All Nations Cape Town hub. He then went back home to Kampala and began implementing what he learned. Today, he has a rapidly growing church planting movement of over 800 house churches that has spread to multiple streams of the population. The churches are being planted in the ghettos among ex-gangsters and prostitutes. They are among an unreached, Nubian people group and among the Somali, Sudanese, and South Sudanese refugees. They are in the city and in the countryside.

Wilson's core team of church planting leaders are a young motley crew: former hoodlums who are his first missionaries among South Sudanese refugees near the world's largest refugee camp; a girl named Happy who has brought a farming community to Christ, and is in school learning English so that she can communicate the Gospel to foreigners; a lawyer who gave up his career to help lead the movement; and a former prostitute who has brought many from this business to Christ. A big challenge for them is the lack of income because what should a person do when they quit gangstering? But Wilson's leaders are now taking business training to start initiatives to fund their own ministry, feed their families, and teach others to generate income.

As for me, I'm humbled to serve these heroes who are transforming lives and making Jesus great in the nations!

Pray For the Zanzibari An Unreached People Group

One of All Nations' strategic priorities is to mobilize for and engage with Unengaged & Unreached People Groups (UUPGs). With the guidance of the Lord, we have identified a number of people groups to focus on for a given period of time. These groups are chosen based on prayer, research, and opportunity. Take a minute to watch the video below on how you can pray specifically for the Zanzibari of Zanzibar, so that they may know His name.

Reimagining My City - Marko Pretorius

City Transformation Focus

I have an old pamphlet pinned up in our office that contains a print of the painting shown below. I picked it up at an art exhibition when my wife and I were still students. I always thought, "One day I will buy this painting." Luckily we never did, because it will not fit in a suitcase! My pamphlet has become one of the permanent accessories that travel with us. It's one of my favorite images, and captures my imagination every time I look at it. It is dynamic, alive and strong; but at the same time, it seems mysterious, dangerous and a little chaotic. I feel the same way about my city.

We have always loved cities, and for the last several years, we've had the privilege of living and working in Cape Town. I love my city, but at the same time, it challenges me deeply. Cape Town is set in a geographic bowl that is hedged in by mountains, oceans and winelands, and is breathtakingly beautiful! Some locals will tell you that the closer you live to Table Mountain the more beautiful you become. I love its creativity and distinction. I love its diversity that is shaped by indigenous kings, colonialists, pioneers and strong visionary leaders. I am proud to say I am a Capetonian. I am also concerned for my city...
